

Harley Night - Portuguese Chicken Night – 29 July 2011

What is the difference between a Portuguese Chicken and a Curry Chicken? The Portuguese Chicken does not make a Historian lose his memory. This highly enjoyable Harley Night took place at the Hartbees pub in the Zwartkop Airforce Base.

Monique and Liesl were in charge of chicken procurement, Barry in charge of chicken preparation and the rest of the members were responsible for chicken polishing. All-in-all 40 chickens made a turn at the braai stand. Maybe therein lies the secret of the mysterious memory loss that the Historian suffered during the potjie kos competition. He cooked his potjie in a seated position that time and the Portuguese chicken this time whilst standing. On the other hand, it may also be the venue because his guests for the evening, Clive and Thea from Cape Town, also remembered very little the next morning.

The evening started cold and ended in real winter fashion - freezing. Fortunately there were many factors that made the cold bearable. Norman and Carl lent us their kaggels and a few trees supplied the external heat. Spirits sorted out the internal cold – spirits in the form of Ol' Number 7, the Captain, a kaleidoscope of coloured Shooters and a generous dose of genuine Harley Hog High Spirits. As a matter of fact – the spirits were so good that some members only left at about 03h00 the next morning.

Our next Harley night should be at the new Pretoria dealership. Hope to see all Hoggers there.
